Thanks for the info. It's been ridiculous, and we've put in a few maintenance requests which have never been answered. At the moment we have water coming into the house, and especially with the gutters being gone, it's worse. I'll have to take off one of these days to go to the meeting to express my thoughts and feelings on that especially considering they want to spend money on repaving when this is a huge problem.

Always fun times with this place.
