I absolutely agree. The flooding of information and correspondence is overwhelming and obscuring important time sensitive information.

Maybe we can stick to a couple (meaning one or two) emails with all desired talking points in bullet point form format to refrain from so much back and forth. Another option would be to set up a day and time to meet and again list all areas of concern. Flooding information will only have more things fall through the cracks and make it harder for all to follow along.

It was a suggestion. Pretty much anything unnecessary shouldn't be included. Anything important and or relevant should be sent.

Maritza,

I am curious of what you are calling unnecessary attachments? If matters need to be discussed by the Board, then that is what we are here to do.

Good afternoon all,

I am happy to be a new board member and can't wait to learn.

Having said that, I would like to ask everyone a big favor: Please keep emails to a minimum. It will help me to retain the most important information while I acclimate to the new position.

We can keep email threads short, with facts, no feelings, and minimal attachments.

I can't speak for others, but I get lost in SO much unnecessary information and attachments.

I really appreciate it.

I look forward to learning with and from everyone.
